PRODUCT DESCRIPTION

100 gram bag

This particular extract is taken from the seeds of the vitis vinifera, L (a type of grape plant usually used to make wine). Polyphenols are particularly strong antioxidants and can be found in high concentrations within the seed of this plant. Grape seed also contains procyanidolic oligomers.

While vitamins C and E are thought to be great sources of antioxidants, the antioxidants present in these nutrients are usually excreted from the body not long after consumption. However, the antioxidants provided by grape seed extract can stay in the body up to three days.

Serving Size & Timing

Grape Seed Extract should be taken in servings of 250 mg two times per day, depending on intended effect. This is equal to about 1/16 tsp. No more than 500 mg per day should be taken unless specifically told to do so by a medical professional. Grape Seed Extract should be taken every other day to maintain balanced levels of this chemical in the body.

SIDE EFFECTS & FURTHER INFORMATION
CONCENTRATION OF GRAPE SEED EXTRACT

There are no fillers of any kind present in this supplement, and it is considered food grade and vegan friendly.

There are many ingredients in Grape Seed powder meant to promote general health such as polyphenols, lipids, carbohydrates and flavonoids. One unique component of Grape Seed Extract is Procyanidin. This nutrient helps maintain comprehensive oral health as well as health of bones, hair, skin and other body tissues. Grape Seed Extract also has Resveratrol, an antioxidant that is particularly useful in helping with cardiovascular health.

GRAPE SEED EXTRACT SIDE EFFECTS

While some have reported minor issues such as headache, itchiness of scalp, dizziness and even nausea, these reports are rare and all occur in subjects who have taken above the recommended dosage. If allergic to grapes, this supplement should be avoided.

TIPS

Grape Seed Extract will blend surprisingly well when mixed with water or juice. It can even be taken with or on food. Servings larger than 100mg of the supplement will probably be a bit too bitter for most to tolerate. Those with sensitive stomachs or taste buds may want to consider having gel caps filled with this extract in order for accurate consumption. This product should be stored in an area that is free from light, heat and moisture.

RESTRICTIONS

Due to varying import regulations, not all of our supplements are available to international customers. This product is restricted for sale in the following countries:

Switzerland
