Latanoprost

A double-blind scientific study published in the May 2012 issue of the Journal of the American Academy of Dermatology found that latanoprost mimics naturally-derived compound molecules called prostaglandins. This significantly increases hair density on the scalp after 24 weeks of treatment in young men with mild hair loss.

Minoxidil

Minoxidil is an anti-hypertensive vasodilator medication. It also slows hair loss and promotes hair regrowth in some people.

Ketoconazole

Ketoconazole, in topical hair formulations, is primarily used to eliminate scalp conditions such as dandruff. It kills fungi and yeasts that grow on the scalp. Ketoconazole stops the fungi from producing ergosterol, which fungi cell membranes need to survive. It's marketed as an anti-fungal pill for people with dandruff or other skin conditions. Ketoconazole is also used for hair loss as an effective way to treat scalp dihydrotestosterone ("DHT").

Finasteride

Finasteride works by blocking the conversion of the male hormone testosterone into dihydrotestosterone ("DHT"). "DHT" and heredity are responsible for hair loss.
